FEED BACK ANALYSIS AND ACTION TAKEN REPORT

PG - 2021 – 2022

Feedback Analysis:

The proposed mark allotment for internal and external components of all PG practicals has been thoroughly reviewed and discussed. Faculty members and stakeholders expressed their views on the appropriateness and fairness of the proposed distribution. The need for innovative methods of evaluating students in practicals was a key point of discussion. Members provided valuable insights into potential changes and enhancements that could be made to the existing syllabus to incorporate more dynamic and contemporary evaluation methods.

Action Taken Report:

1. The proposed mark allotment for both internal and external components of PG practicals has been officially approved. This decision has been communicated to all faculty members, and necessary adjustments have been made to the assessment processes.
2. To ensure transparency and inclusivity, faculty members and students, will be actively engaged in the process of exploring and implementing innovative evaluation methods.
3. A proposal for enhancing the syllabus has been drafted. It includes recommendations for incorporating innovative evaluation methods, updating content to reflect the latest developments in the field, and ensuring alignment with industry needs.

These actions will contribute to the continuous improvement of our PG practicals evaluation processes and syllabus.
