FEED BACK ANALYSIS AND ACTION TAKEN REPORT

PG - 2022 – 2023

Feedback Analysis:

The course outcomes for the II PG Chemistry Theory papers were subject to a detailed discussion among board members. Feedback from subject experts, faculty members, and stakeholders was collected to assess the clarity, relevance, and achievability of the proposed outcomes. The course outcomes of the self-study paper were scrutinized to ensure alignment with educational objectives and pedagogical best practices. Feedback was sought from board members, with a particular focus on the feasibility and effectiveness of the self-study component.

Action Taken Report:

1. Following a thorough discussion and evaluation, the board has officially approved the course outcomes for the II PG Chemistry Theory papers. The suggestions provided by subject experts during the discussion have been taken into account, and necessary adjustments have been made to enhance the clarity and effectiveness of the outcomes.
2. The suggestions for improvement from subject experts have been diligently considered and implemented.
3. Recognizing the invaluable input of subject experts, efforts will be made to maintain an ongoing dialogue with them. Their continued involvement will be sought for future reviews, ensuring that the course outcomes remain dynamic and responsive to emerging trends and advancements in the field.

These actions will contribute to the refinement and effectiveness of the PG Chemistry program. The faculty and subject experts continuous support and expertise are crucial to the success of these initiatives.
