This report highlights the measures undertaken in response to invaluable feedback received from stakeholders concerning the curriculum of the PG Diploma in Import and Export Management. Feedback, gathered through meetings and direct communications, represents the diverse perspectives of stakeholders actively engaged in developing the curriculum.

A pivotal insight derived from stakeholder feedback was a unanimous request for the integration of activity-based teaching and learning methodologies. Acknowledging the merit of this collective perspective, the department swiftly embraced this recommendation.

Commencing from the upcoming academic year, the department has effectively implemented activity-based teaching and learning as a foundational component of our instructional approach. This strategic decision aims to cultivate a dynamic and immersive learning environment, aligning our educational practices with contemporary pedagogical trends and catering to the evolving needs of students in the realm of Import and Export Management.
